It will be seen, says the Memphis Bulletin, by an elaborate report of the action of the Chamber of Commerce, that Memphis at length appreciates the necessity for the speedy extension of the Iron Mountain Railroad to Hopefield, on the opposite shore of the Mississippi All classes of citizens, Northern and Southern, new and old, participated in the proceedings of the meeting Next to the necessity for the speedy completion of the railways to St. Louis and Little Rock, is that for a community of purposes and interests begotten by meetings like that of yesterday, and by enterprises like those to which we advert. Auspicious is the beginning of this great work. Pro-found is the interest felt in its success by all who propose to make Memphis a perma-

He desires us to request those of his soldiers who remember incidents or anecdotes of the "Stonewall of the West," to write out and forward the same to that paper. As the biography is intended to be an extended and truthful record of one of the greatest and best of Confederate Generals, it is heped that his friends in Arkansas, to whom his memory will ever be sacred, will gladly contribute such facts as will illustrate his private or literary character.

Radical Doxology .- We understand that the secret Radical caucuses at Washington invariably close with the following flagrant and appropriate Doxology-long metre:

"From Africa the negro came, Arise, oh Congress, bless his name! Stand up, good Stevens, bless the day, The negro came from Africal He is the object of our love-In him we live, in him we move : For him we preach, for him we pray, For him we meet from day to day, That colored cuss from Africa."

Brudder Stevens pitches the tune; after which all retire to prey upon the vitals of the country. -Memphis Argus.
